ON BOWERY ERE THE SUN WAS LOW,
Before the earlier fall of snow,
Tremendous was the steady flow
Of fashion's tide to Roberts'.

But Broadway saw another sight— The dealers there looked puzzled quite, And lay awake at dead of night, Trying to solve the mystery.

Behind their deaks they looked a As fashion's throng went sween The tide of trade was setting fast Toward the ancient Bowery.

But soon the cause was piain indeed, That even those who ran could read. The he'fes went with quickened speed To buy their cloaks at Roberts.
